The Science Behind InduraFloor

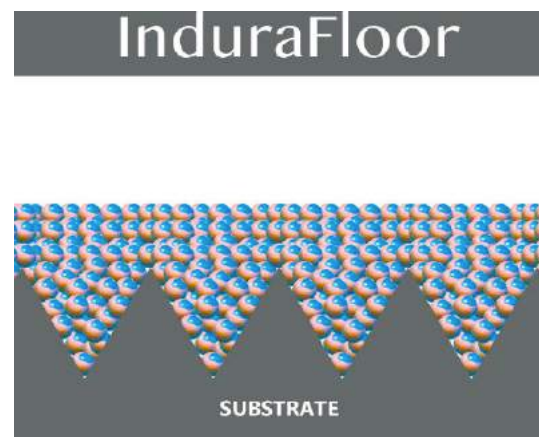

Particles in generic products cannot penetrate into the surface of the substrate, resulting in weak adhesion and eventual failure. This is due to its large particle size and round shape.

This means you're stuck cleaning, grinding, or even removing old material before you can even think about coating.

With InduraFloor and our proprietary technology, you can skip over these expensive steps and go straight to application with a simple clean over any surface, including tiles and oily + damaged concrete.

How? We reduce the size of our particles and reduce its surface tension. This gives our particles substantially more adhesion due to a larger part of it making contact with the surface. Our smaller particles also fill in the microscopic gaps where generic coatings could not.
